Annual Training Deployment

Snowbirds Here, 26 March to 10 April

MOOSE JAW -- Canada's precision military aerobatic team, the Snowbirds, will be at CFB Comox from 26 March to 10 April, 1993 for their annual training deployment.

Col Bill Kalbfleisch, Base Commander of CFB Moose Jaw, is pleased to announce that the team's 1993 schedule has been approved and preparations are well under way for the upcoming show season.

The Snowbirds are coming off a very successful 22nd season where the team performed at locations from Inuvik, NWT to Southern California and from Vancouver Island to Newfoundland. Over 71 million people across North America have been thrilled by the aerial precision of Canada's aerobatic team.

After the first show, traditionally held at its home base of CFB Moose Jaw, the team will begin its 1993 season on 25 April in Grand Prairie, Alberta and perform its final display on 10 October at Muskogee, Oklahoma.

The workup for the 1993 season began last November when competitive tryouts were held to select new team members to replace the Snowbirds who had come to the end of their two-year tour. Changing half of the team each year is done to ensure a uniform level of expertise is maintained from year to year.

Major Dean Rainkie, the Snowbirds outer right wing for the 81-82 season will lead the Squadron in his first year as Commanding Officer. An experienced Canadian Forces fighter pilot, Major Rainkie has accumulated over 3,900 hours on jet fighter and trainer aircraft.

The Snowbirds schedule includes 74 shows at 54 locations during the April to October show season as the Squadron represents Canada and the Canadian Forces throughout North America.

Tie A Blue Ribbon

By Bob Orrick

During the Gulf War our neighbours south of the world's longest undefended international border festooned their country with vellow ribbons to signify their support for members of that country's service personnel who were engaged in the United Nations' second international coalition to disengage an aggressor nation from a bordering nation. The first such action was in Korea from June, 1950 to July, 1953. But that was an earlier time, a different war, a much bloodier war and certainly a much longer and more devastating war.

That was then and this is now.

The national approval shown by the Americans in their service men and women during the Gulf War was not lost on Canadians. In a manner emulating their southern cousins Canadians coast to coast displayed yellow ribbons to signify their love of land and pride in their warriors fighting in the far-off Gulf War.

However, to a group of ladies in Manitoba the yellow ribbon failed to recognize Canadians keeping the peace in a multitude of countries from Cambodia to Cyprus, from Bosnia to Somalia. These Canadian women of stout heart and national fervour felt the yellow ribbon simply did not suffice when applied to Canada's United Nations peacekeeping personnel spread around the world in a multitude of troubled countries. It was not difficult for the Manitobans to put down the yellow and pick up the UN blue. For them, and the world, the blue beret of UN peacekeeping forces is recognized everywhere on the face of the globe as a symbol of hope. That hope, supported by good, old Canadian commonsense and with the occasional flexing of UN biceps, has been a stabilizing force in a host of countries since the initial peacekeeping force, with Canadians at the helm, first donned the blue beret.

And so, these women from the land of the bison took it upon themselves to organize, publicize and in all respects support Canada's United Nations peacekeepers regardless of their duty location. They have done this by promoting the wearing of a blue ribbon on the lapels of Canadians from St. John's, Newfoundland to Dawson, Yukon Territory, from Alert, Northwest Territories to Pelee Pt., Ontario, and all hamlets, villages, towns and cities, including the urban sprawl of Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver, in between. From the fishing ground off Atlantic Canada to the rain forest of Vancouver Island, from the dry prairie to the cold north, from the depths of the deepest mines to the lofty heights of the CN Tower. Canadians everywhere, from every walk of life, encompassing all endeavours, are urged to wear a UN blue ribbon on their lapels to signify their support for our lads and lasses who stepped forward and said, "Ready, aye, ready" and volunteered to serve anywhere there is need as proud members of this country's understaffed and over-committed armed forces.

Readers interested in learning more about the Manitoban ladies and their sense of pride in Canada's peacekeeping personnel should contact the nearest armed forces base, or a local unit of the Royal Canadian Legion; the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada; or the Korea Veterans Association of Canada, Inc. It is this writer's understanding that each of the veterans' organizations has been supplied with information regarding the United Nations peacekeeping blue ribbon campaign.

Now that you've Joined....

The Comox branch of RCAFA is unique in Canada in its size and rate of growth. Local support has been tremendous. But support means more than going to 888 Wing's social functions. Your attendance at meetings is needed, too. The club cannot function legally without a quorum at its meetings, and paralysis will set in if important decisions are not made. Now that you've joined, please make the effort to give 888 Wing that extra support. The Annual General Meeting will be held on Wednesday 7 April at 8 p.m. at the Wing. Please be there.

Canada's Last Squadron Heads Home

On 19 January, with the hills of the "Schwarzwarld," or Black Forest, dimly contrasted against a grey, mid-morning sky, fighters from Canada's last squadron in Germany taxied down the runway at CFB Baden-Soellingen. The 6,000-kilometre transatlantic journey ahead of them was aptly called "Rhine Prosit '93" - a play on "Ein prosit," which means

The first formation of six CF-18s circled east, doing a fly-past over the historic town of Baden-Baden, named for its hot springs popular in Roman times and still popular today. The ancient town and the surrounding region had been home to thousands of Canadian Forces members. Many had married there. Some had even settled there.

Then, before veering westward for Canada, the six pilots from 4 Wing's 439 "Tiger" Squadron flew their fuel-laden fighters back over the base that had been home to Canadian fighter pilots since it was taken over from the French in 1953. Those early days of the Cold War were very tense, and a Europe still recovering from the Second World War was little able to defend itself from possible Soviet aggression. Canadians and Americans had planned to stay a few years, until the crisis passed and Europe was secure. But the Cold War only grew colder.

At its peak, Canada's air contribution grew to more than 300 aircraft. Its first jet-fighter was the F-86 Sabre, which the commander of 4 Wing, Col Lloyd Campbell, describes as the "most elegant" of fighters and the "last of the breed" of jets evolved from the Second World War.

The Sabre, a day fighter, was joined in 1957 by the Canadianmade, all-weather Avro CF-100 "Canuck." In 1962, the CF-104 Starfighter arrived to take on a nuclear strike role. It quickly became the bane of the Royal Canadian Air Force because of its unshakable reputation as a deadly, accident-prone aircraft.

But Campbell, who has almost 2,000 hours in the Starfighter, says it was "marvellous to fly. And he points out that the new air strategy of the '60s, calling for low-level nuclear strike and reconnaissance, contributed to the CF-104's accident record.

The first of the multi-role, ultramodern CF-18 Hornets arrived in 1985 to continue with the conventional ground attack role the Starfighter had taken on in the 1970s. By the late 1980s the Hornet had moved to an air superiority role.

The irony, Campbell says, is that following improvements that began in the '70s - from the capability to operate in a chemical environment to state-of-theart missiles, plus the arrival of the Hornet - CFB Baden had reached its "zenith of capability" when the closures were announced in 1991.

However, the reason Canada came four decades ago - "to buttress a weakened Europe" - has passed, he says. "Today the threat of the Warsaw Pact is gone and Europe is stronger, although there are still threats to European security." And Canada faces far tougher budgetary constraints.

As NATO has expressed no need for the base, Baden will be turned over to the German government on 31 December. Still, there are bonds between Canada and Germany that will never be broken. Many Canadians married and settled in the area, and many more Germans have married Canadians and moved to Canada.

by Lt(N) Dave Scanlon

There will be memeorials left in the neighbouring towns. A pedestal-mounted CF-104 will be left in Soellingen. A friendship cairn will be built in Huegelsheim. And a memorial marking the deaths of 40 pilots and three ground crew over the years will be left at the Huegelsheim

Along with Canadian Forces Europe and CFB Baden-Soellingen, the last fighter squadron to leave is itself being disbanded. Tiger Squadron was formed in 1943 and eventually flew pre-D Day missions from the south coast of England. It finished the war on the continent with deployments to France Belgium, Germany and Holland, before it returned to England and was disbanded in August 1945.

It was reactivated in 1951 and became the first squadron to fly overseas. 439 was retired again in 1963 and reactivated in 1964 with the arrival of the Starfighter.

In 1970, the squadron was moved to Baden where it ceased operations in 1984 along with its retiring Starfighters. It was then equipped with the new Hornets and resumed operations at Baden in 1985. Combined with 416 Squadron under the handle "Desert Cats," 439 saw combat ction during the Gulf War

Tiger Squadron now has the dual distinction of being Canada's first jet-fighter squadron to fly overseas and its last to fly home. But if history repeats itself, as it often does, the Tigers may take to the skies of Europe anew. But may they never again have to bare their "fangs of death" in anger.

Raise the Sea King!

HALIFAX -- Attempts will be made to raise a Sea King helicopter approximately 140 metres from its resting place on the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico as part of the ongoing investigation into the circumstances which caused the pilot to ditch the aircraft in the pre-dawn hours of 27 February

THURSDAY 25 MARCH 1993

"We have determined that it is necessary to raise the helicopter in order to isolate the exact cause of the electrical failure," said Col Gene Pestell, director of flight safety for Canada's air force.

A Canadian Forces flight safety team from Ottawa, along with a specialist in Sea King helicopter electrical systems from CFB Shearwater, N.S., have departed for Tampa, Fla. where they will board a salvage barge under contract with the United States Navy.

The Sea King helicopter sank approximately 200 km west of Tampa, Fla. Once the exact position of the helicopter is determined, it will be recovered and taken to the United States Navy base in Pensacola, Fla. where it will be examined.

The board of inquiry has been suspended until the aircraft is recovered and a technical investigation carried out.

Playground Thanks

Dear Editor.

The painting of the Ward 1 playground is complete and there are many special thanks that need to go out to those people who made this possible. Thanks to WO Mike Turcotte for his help in getting the paint; Brian De Vries at Roads & Grounds for the fencing and poles; and the people at General Stores for the necessary equipment to complete the job. The people we must all appreciate are the children. Their unconditional enthusiasm should be a learning experience for all of us. Without their help this job wouldn't have been completed. Thanks to Jerry Raymond, Nathan Neale, Patrick Lemay, Sabastien Dinel, Erin & James Eckhardt and my husband Darryl, and especially to Colleen Mackie and her son Jordan who are not even resident of Ward 1 and still came to support our efforts.

Thanks to all. Sincerely, Mrs. J. Eckhardt

Wear a Helmet!

Dear Editor

Having read your excellent article on safe cycling and the wearing of "safety helmets" in the 11 March Totem Times, I felt the following enclosure would be an excellent follow-up. This is a letter written by my daughter, Mrs. M.S. (Lorraine) Barner, to the Vancouver Sun at the time of her son's accident in Vancouver.

May I add my plea to hers, to please when cycling, wear a safety helmet.

The devastation to a family after an accident such as the above mentioned, is indescribable. Not only the tragedy of a young person being possibly maimed for life, but the traumatic effect of the shock and trying to cope with the reality of it all mentally takes a very long time to right itself.

There is no age limit on who should or shouldn't wear headgear. I have seen mothers and fathers riding bikes with little ones on a booster seat. The child has a helmet on but the adult doesn't. What happens to the child if they are in an accident and mom or dad are killed or seriously injured while riding in this fashion? And because they are not wearing a helmet?

I have taken particular note, since this happened in our family, and have been shocked and alarmed to find most children and many adults still don't wear headgear.

As a wife, a mother, and a grandmother, I beg you, please protect yourself and your loved ones, and save yourself and them what we have been through.

Wear a helmet. Most sincerely, Phyllis T. Davis gave parents their best birthday gift

Bike helmet

N FEB. 5, our 23-year-old son was struck by a car while riding his bike in Vancouver. He was thrown from his bike and his head hit a parked vehicle. Ed is not a reckless young man. In fact, he is a paramedic who has seen first-hand the results of unsafe cycling. With that in mind, he did everything humanly possible to be safe - including wearing a helmet.

It is because of this helmet that there is a hopeful ending to this letter. Ed remains in the neurosurgery ward at Vancouver General lospital, but he is alive and on the ong road to recovery. His helmet shattered into more than 10 pieces. It could have been I implore all cyclists to wear a helmet and I implore all parents to insure their children wear a good Perhaps in the future, helmets will be mandatory and there will be safe cycling paths. Until the rights of people assume the rights of cars, we have a long fight ahead. March 5 was our son's 24th birthday. We truly celebrated his life.

Twas The Night Before Amit

(With Apologies to Clement C. Moore)

All the Sergeants had panicked at the thought of the hassle.

'Twas the night before AMIT and all through the Castle

In the fear that the AMIT team soon would be there.

The pilots were strapped all snug in their planes,

While visions of dogfights danced in their brains.

Had just settled down for a quick T-Bird start,

When back at the desk there arose such a clatter,

As the thought of the AMIT team gave me a rash,

More rapid than eagles his henchmen they came,

On, Searcher! On, Seeker! On, Sneaker, you lout!

To the top of the bookcase, to the back of that file!

Now, check those CFTOs, check the whole pile!"

So up through the Squadron his agents they flew

As I regained my head, and was turning around,

His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry.

As a sort of a bribe so he'd say we'd done right.)

A wink of his eye and a twist of his head

And laying his forms in neat little rows,

Soon gave me to know I had plenty to dread.

And giving a nod, up from his chair he arose.

He sprang to his car, to his team gave a whistle,

But I heard him exclaim as he drove out of sight,

(The effects of a Meet and Greet held the last night

He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work

And filled all of his forms, then turned with a jerk

And away they all flew like the pointy end of a thistle.

"We'll be back in twelve months, so please get it right!"

Down the stairs the AMIT Major returned with a bound.

His eyes, how they twinkled! His dimples, how merry!

And then in a twinkling, I heard up the stair

A cry that could only be the CO in despair.

With a case full of pencils, and a small lap-top, too.

And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name:

"Now, Snooper! Now, Sniffer! Now, Spier! Now, Scout!

When, what to my timorous eyes should appear

But the inspection team with all of their gear,

With a little old Major so lively and quick

I knew in a moment we'd have to act slick.

We raced back to the hangar to see what was the matter.

AMI's were hung by the canteen with care,

And Duane on a mule and I with a cart

Away to Servicing I flew like a flash,

E.H. Industries, the joint Westland and Agusta company managing the EH101 development programme, is confidently predicting more than 800 sales worldwide.

Gale force winds and rough seas faced EH101 "Merlin," the Royal Navy's new shipborne helicopter teamed with HMS "Iron Duke," a new type 23 Frigate, to complete a second programme of ship handling trials in the English Channel. The Anglo-Italian advanced technology EH101 made 69 landings aboard the frigate in weather conditions that produced 40-50 knot winds and 20-foot high

With a standard displacement of 3,500 tons, the British Type 23 Frigate is considerably smaller than the new Canadian Patrol Frigate (CPF) with its standard displacement of 4,750 tons. Westland Helicopters' Chief Test Pilot Colin Hague considered the trials a complete success for the EH101. "The EH101 is designed to operate in North Atlantic winter conditions and the Channel produced sea state seven. The aircraft handled well throughout four days of trials," said Mr. Hague.

The Royal Navy has ordered 44 Naval EH101s at a £1.5 billion contract price and both Canada and Italy will operate EH101 fleets. Canada has ordered 50 EH101s for Search & Rescue and Maritime Patrol. The Marina Militare Italiana will use its initial 16 EH101s in a multi-role EH101, built by Westland Helicopters of Britain and Agusta of Italy, has been developed in a unique integrated programme to provide military, civil and naval variants from a basic airframe. Deathrow, as it became known in 1981 at CFB Summerside, was a line of twenty-four CP-107 Argus's awaiting disposal by the guillotine. It was rumoured that the oldtimers who worked on the Base would drive the long way around during the destruction phase, unable to witness the sad demise of the Grand Duchess. There were many admirers wishing and hoping a benefactor would come forth and spare some airframes for flying. But no champion appeared and 24 gooses were cooked for $71,936. roughly $3000 apiece.

Twelve years later, permission has been given to do a survey of Argus 712 (Airpark monument) to determine what 13 years of en-

Who Has the Right-of-Way?

When paths of roadway users cross there is a conflict. Who should proceed and who should wait? In other words, who should yield the right of way?

In general, right of way rules require one person to yield - that is, let another proceed first. It is extremely important that drivers know and obey the right-of-way laws in their provinces, and in other provinces in which they drive. Not knowing or disobeying these laws can lead to serious accidents. For example, in some urban areas pedestrians in crosswalks always have the right of way; drivers unaware of this would present a great hazard to themselves and pedestrians. Another more common right-ofway rule states that roadway users must yield to emergency vehicles. The purpose of this rule is obvious: to clear the way so that ambulances, police cars and fire trucks can get to where they have to go as quickly as possible. When you see and hear flashing lights and sirens, move as far right as possible to clear the way. Drivers of emergency vehicles must also drive in a reasonable manner. (Serious accidents have been caused by emergency vehicles speeding or passing through red lights.) They do however need your co-operation.

There are several right-of-way laws that apply here in British Columbia. The most common questions that MSE safety personnel receive are, who has the right-of-way when two vehicles approach or enter an uncontrolled (unmarked) intersection at the

Another question is who has the right-of-way between vehicles and pedestrians?

In order to answer this question correctly, I'll quote out of the Province of British Columbia Motor Vehicle Act.

Rights of Way Between Vehicle and Pedestrian

The driver of a vehicle shall yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian where traffic control signals are not in place or not in operation when the pedestrian is crossing the highway in a crosswalk and the pedestrian is on the half of the highway in which the vehicle is travelling, or is approaching so closely from the other half of the highway that he is in danger.

down or stopped at a crosswalk or at an intersection to permit a pedestrian to cross the highway, the driver of a vehicle approaching from the rear shall not overtake and pass the vehicle which is slowing down or stopped.

A pedestrian, cyclist or the driver of a motor vehicle shall obey the instructions of an adult school crossing guard and of a school student acting as a member of a traffic patrol where the guards or students are provided under the school act.

Crossing at Other Than a Crosswalk

When a pedestrian is crossing a highway at a point not in a crosswalk, he shall yield the right-of-way to a vehicle.

The Murmansk Run Part 3 - "You cheeky BAA...STARRRR...DDDS!

"Some of the merchant ships stopped to give assistance to men in the water; but for the most part the lumbering columns swept on. FAR DISTANT SHIPS by Joseph Schull'

The stench of death permeated the fo'c'sle where the eleven halffrozen bodies lay stacked like cordwood, not yet attended to, not sewn into their canvas cocoons. The cadavers had recently been plucked from the raging waters by pike poles and grapnel hooks, all covered in thick black oil; hair, features and torsos a tarry mess. Most of the deck crew had seen the explosion, or to be more precise, both explosions. The torpedoes had found their mark with Germanic precision, dead amidships and only seconds apart. The two tankers were bulk carriers and had exploded and burst in two as twigs would snap in a dry forest. The fires were comparatively small as bulk crude does not ignite as easily as petrol, but the surrounding waters were black as midnight, shimmering with muted rainbow colours and fouling everything that came near the floating slime. Two sailors, barely recognizable as human beings, also covered in tar, were hustled below for more immediate attention. Their pitiful moans were the only indication that they were alive.

Both ships had by now sunk beneath the surface, one by the bow and the other by the stern. Little remained to be done but to clear the area and leave the "seek and sink" to the overworked corvettes. The fog rolled in heavily, blanketing the seas with a near impenetrable mist. And then the unthinkable happened: the bulk fuel tanker took a direct hit (undoubtedly that damned third torpedo) and a gigantic explosion rocked the convoy, a fireball of immense proportions fueled by ten thousand tons of gasoline exploding skyward, lighting the seas for miles around like the unshaded tropical sun. The ship simply disintegrated with no trace of fragmentation, no debris. The deafening sound radiated outward with the heat wave and caused ships on all sides to tremble in the shock surge. The fog was burned away for miles.

But the corvettes were on to the U-boat responsible for the carnage and were badgering the submersible with depth charges flung from the hedgehog, the new weapon that cast the explosives affead, rather than simply dropping them from the stern. Little did the Royal Canadian Navy know they were dealing with five German submarines, each one determined to wreak as much havoc as humanly possible on the enemy convoy. In the heat of the battle, a wounded submarine surfaced, battered and dented, periscope bent at an ungainly angle. She was manoeuvering to come about to fire a surface torpedo. The corvette master, too close in to fire his deck cannons, shouted "Ram, ram!" and headed for the smaller craft. The curved bow of the Navy ship ran up onto the deck of the submarine and the momentum caused the sub to roll over, much like rolling a pencil between two palms. She filled with sea water and sank, miraculously causing minimal damage to the surface vessel. The Navy log reported no survivors were picked up. The convoy, harassed, wounded and bleeding, continued on its voyage through the arctic

Well, son, we are getting closer to our destination and things have been quite busy on board. My pilot friend took off for a look-see flight and I watched him fly right out of sight. A little while later I saw a puff of smoke in the sky, way up high. I don't know what happened but I hope he shot down a Nazi plane. The weather has been terrible the last little while and we've had a bit of excitement too, but all that can wait till later. I've had a chance to practice my Industrial First Aid lately - a couple of chaps have taken quite ill. Oh, by the way, did you know that a submarine has two hulls, like one skin inside the other, and that they can take quite a beating without sinking? Remind me to tell you about it when we meet

The Russian port of Murmansk lies on the Barents Sca north of the Arctic circle at approximately the 69th parallel, and some 35 miles inland. The narrow fjord is open year round. As dawn cast its somber rays across the port city, the first of many merchantmen steamed slowly into the harbour and to waiting docks. Fifty-four survivors of the convoy of sixty-three were docked and serviced immediately. The longshoremen were paragons of efficiency, swarming over the ships in orderly confusion, unloading the precious deck cargoes with utmost attention. The huge wooden crates, not unlike gigantic shoeboxes, were no sooner on the docks than they were peeled open, exposing shiny aluminum aircraft fuselages with stubby chopped-off wings, the remaining components such as engines, undercarriages, the wings themselves, and tail assemblies, also neatly enclosed. Rows and rows of them, enough for several squadrons. And the tanks. When the canvas covers were removed, gigantic tanks, Valentines with wickedly extended 105 mm cannons, lined the docks from end to end, forming a seaside battalion, all soon to be whisked away. From the bowels of the ships came large crates that when opened exposed self-contained all-encompassing portable machine shops complete with lathes, gauges, tools, equipment and instructions in English and Russian as to assembly and usage, highly adapted for front line repair work. Lumber, enough for thousands and thousands of buildings; uncounted sacks of food: flour, rice, wheat, beans, corn, piled as high as the roofs of the storage sheds; fuel, gas, oil, lubricants, diesel, barrels and barrels. And halftracks, jeeps, dried foodstuffs, warm clothing, paper products, baby needs, books, liquor, cigarettes...an endless list. "Let's go ashore, Chief." The second engineer was leaning on the bridge as he spoke to the steward. "Can't come all this way and not pay our respects."

"Might be interesting to see our crew on skates. Understand they're playing a team from the Alberni in a game of makeup hockey. We can go to the rink but no farther. Can't say the welcome banner is waving with much enthusiasm."

"Let's go!" ****

The rink was an open-air sheet of mottled ice, much used and obviously in need of smoothing. The Canadian team members were huddled to one comer of what would be called the bleachers. An air of pessimism was evident. One player was still bleeding from the nose. "If you came to see the game, guys, forget it. We can play our game our way, but when it comes to playing the Ruskies, it's a different sent of rules. We're used to a level playing field and goalposts that don't move." The understanding spectators nodded in assent and moved on to the souvenir booth by the entrance.

"Must be wartime rationing here, too, Chief. All you can buy is cheap gasoline vodka and wooden dolls within dolls. The booze is used in flamethrowers but the dolls are still OK for presents."

"Nobody likes us here. I get the feeling we're not welcome. Let's get back to the ship."

And so it was in Russia in the early days. The general populace was so impoverished and maltreated from previous wars they had a permanent distrust of all foreigners. And seeing the sailors with bulging wallets and full bellies giving away their wealth did little to allay their

On the afternoon of the third day, the Seven Oaks cast off her lines and headed out of the harbour, riding high and manoeuvering seaward under her own power. The convoy was beginning to regroup off Severomorsk, five nautical miles at sea. Underway, she gulped tons of seawater as ballast and settled lower in the icy depths. But nature was not yet through with her devilment. As the merchantmen began forming for the return convoy, a nightmare of arctic storms lashed the coast, the ships, the sea. The weather was the worst in decades, perhaps the worst in history, as 85-knot gales tore the ships apart, furious in intensity. One coalburning tramp sank, unable to cope with the winds and seas, possibly the victim of a rogue iceberg. The convoy never did form as scheduled, torn asunder from the outset. Some ships lost power and wallowed helplessly in the eye of the gale as the freak snowstorm blinded every effort of seamanship. The whiteout was all-consuming. Rescue tugs could not put out to sea for over 72 hours but were eventually successful in recovering two crippled freighters. The remainder of the fleet, after heroic and audacious efforts, managed a semblance of order, only once again to be mercilessly attacked by marauding U-boats.

by Norm Whitley

The horrendous explosion occurred about noon on the fourth day out. The seas were relatively calm with only 15-foot swells and choppy whitecaps. The U-boat surfaced in the centre of a column and fired at point blank range. An enormous hole was blown in the hull 'midships and the icy seawater gushed in, flooding the boiler room and the main engine room. The ensuing explosion made short work of the merchant vessel and she sank within seconds. The U-boat, having obviously expended her last torpedo and reluctant to return to base with ammunition, chose to make one last daring sweep, and commenced a run at flank speed down the columns of the convoy. This in itself would be unusual, but the fact that the gun crews were on deck firing cannons and machine guns at everything within range made the encounter bizarre. One crewman, surprised and enraged as he ducked for cover from the sting of the hot lead being showered overhead, was seen to jump to his feet and race toward the fleeing submarine, shaking his fist high in the air. The whistling wind muted his piteous epithet so that it never reached the ears of the enemy: "You cheeky BAA...STARRRR...DDDS!"

It didn't help but he felt better anyway.

Flight Test Apprehensions

Test Flight consisted of a number of senior flying instructors whose job was to go from station to station testing all staff pilots in the BCATP across Canada. The first reaction by almost all who read the notice was a moan or groan, followed by such remarks as: "Oh no, not again!" or "Is it a year already?" Most of us had been through it before; "sweating blood" for a couple of hours and with the usual followup stories of how tough the testing officers were. DRR's (daily routine rumours) were already circulating that this year they would be even tougher!

For a week before Test Flight was due to arrive there was a continual line-up at the Link Trainer rooms, for some extra "under the hood flying" or over at Conversion Flight to use a Harvard or Crane for a few exercises. Of course we had to carry on our regular training programmes with the bombing and gunnery students. Those of us on night flying programmes concentrated on our instrument flying, single engine procedure, and other aspects required to keep our "A" certificates in order.

Test Flight arrived in their own transport plane and set up headquarters at Conversion Flight where they would operate for most of the coming week. Pilots, on duty and off duty, reported in at their appointed times, like reporting in to the dentist's office! They concentrated on day flying chaps for the first couple of days; then two or three testing officers took over checking our night night flying, we already began to hear grim stories from some of the daytime crew. "And they'll be even tougher on you night jockeys." Later we heard of one overzealous testing officer who flicked off the switches after they had already completed a forced landing procedure and were "climbing back out." By the time the pilot had got the switches back on they were out of room and he had no choice but to belly land and skid on into a grove of trees, shearing off both wings before coming to a stop. An investigation was under way and a possible court martial for the testing officer.

I was then senior night pilot and had recently been appointed deputy O.C. night flying operations. So I had to look after lining up the chaps on and off duty to report for their Test Flights. I had scheduled myself in during a quieter period of the night and was going over the next hour's schedules with our Dispatcher when an officer entered. He introduced himself as a Wing Commander, the C.O. of Test Flight. I introduced myself and the Dispatcher and told him I was preparing to go over for my appointment. He said it was busy over there and he would do my testing in my own aircraft. He asked if he could look through my log book while I finished up with the Dispatcher. I could hardly concentrate on the remaining schedules with the Dispatcher for the thoughts racing through my mind: "Ouch, I've drawn the senior testing officer himself!" We walked out together toward the aircraft parked out on the line. The Dispatcher had called up the ground crew who followed us out. The C.O. watched me as I did my ground When we came on duty for check around the aircraft. Inside, and seated up forward, the C.O. noticed one of the ground crew preparing to crank the starboard engine and remarked, "Oh yes, an old Mk. I Anson with Cheetah engines. It's been a long time since I flew one of these .: "

> We took off into the night and I prepared to wind up the landing gear. He stopped me and told me we would just do a couple of circuits first. So we went around and made the usual night landing. While we were still rolling he told me to take off again.

While we were climbing out this time, he said he would like to try a landing himself from the right seat. I turned over control to him and he took us around and made a perfect landing. I complimented him on the landing and he turned over control to me and asked me to take us back to the line. After we were parked he told me to shut down and thanked me for the ride. "I'll let you get back to your duties now."

My head was swimming as we walked back to the hangar. I guess we talked but I can't remember! While I was signing in, the Dispatcher looked at me with a quizzical look. I just shrugged my shoulders and looked heavenward. Later, after the C.O. had left, I looked at my log book lying open on my desk. A large rubber stamped area indicated: "Central Flying School, R.C.A.F. Station Trenton, Ont. Category: "A" Anson. Remarks: A high average staff pilot in all respects. D.I. Macklin, W/C."

You could have knocked me over with a feather!

A Short Story

It was a beautiful harvest moon shining in a warm night sky. Numerous aircraft had been flying about on their various errands. Finally, long after midnight, the last exercises were completed at the target areas and a half-dozen kites were returning to base. All were dutifully observing radio silence; there was a war on and orders were orders.

Suddenly the silence was broken as a clear, quiet, almost sultry voice whispered, "Isn't it a lovely moon?" Following a brief silence another voice quietly replied, "Yeah, let's fly to the moon." Then a much clearer voice came on the air with "All aircraft must file flight plans before taking off to the moon!"

After a pregnant silence another voice came over the airwaves enquiring, "Who Dat?" Yet another voice came back quickly asking, "Who dat saying

Finally an authoritarian type voice came booming in advising, "This is Command Radio. You are being monitored."

We never knew and didn't dare trying to find out if the last voice was official.

It was an angelic looking - you might even say "moonstruck" looking - group of fly boys that signed in after a very quiet remainder of their flight back to

End of Story.

Good Day, Eh?

Shack's Annual Hoser Parties just seem to get bigger and better every year. On Saturday 27 Feb 93 Brian (Shack) and Jill Shacklcton hosted the 12th Annual Hoser Party at 2137 McKenzie Ave., Comox. There were 84 registered active participants in the Hoser Olympic Games and several spectators, totalling a record crowd of near one hundred

Hoser Day started with registration from 1130 to 1245. A brief ceremony was held at "High Noon" during which Brian and Jill's son Jared was officially baptized a Hoser. The Judges which included Jeff Bondy (Head Judge), Dan Martin, Rick Shrzyzala, Sue Pasolli, Maria Rheaume, Rainer Roedger and Mike Thurston were briefed by the Head Hoser (Shack) at 1245. The Hoser Olympic Games officially commenced at one o'clock Event One (Donut Eating) was won by Brian (Weiner) Lavigne of the Beer (Green) Team. Brian, an experienced Hoser and former Gold Medallist in this event ('89), easily outclassed his competition. In addition to his Gold Medal, Brian was also awarded a hand-carved "Moose" trophy, donated by Avery Carvings, for his efforts.

Event Two (Down Under) was won by Joe Reynolds (Team Captain) and Brian Lavigne's combined efforts, to give the Beer Team 10 more points and a commanding lead in the competition.

Event Three (Donut Relay) was won by the Earmuff (Blue) Team, (1987, 1988 and 1991 Overall Champions), members Chris Vrabel, Debbie Perfitt, Neil Black, Carrie Usherwood, Sharon MacNeil and Rod Wiseman.

Event Four (Team Beer Race) was won by the Backbacon (Yellow) Team (1992 Overall Champions), members Ken Roy, Lorna Foggo, Marco Rekrut and Duane Capstick.

Event Five (Hoser Golf) was won for the second straight year by the champion duet of Joelle Jameson and Rick Johma of the Beer Team.

Event Six (Beer Relay) was won by the Donut (Purple) Team, members Eric Rheaume (Team Captain), John Tallon, Barry Little, Poppy Hallan, Bruce Crawford and Guy Ouellette. Event Seven (Strainer Relay), First Time Event, was won by the Beer Team, members Joe Reynolds, Marie Lapierre, Chris Ouellette, Brian Lavigne, Lynn Levesque and Darren Blair.

Event Eight (Hoser Wheelbarrows) was won by the Buns After the winning team and all (Pink) Team (1986 and 1990 Overall Champions), members Paul Hosegrove, Nikki Krug, Jake Jacobson, Chris MacNeil, Event Nine (Hosery Sock Hop Relay) was won by the Beer Team, members Rick Johma, Marie Lapierre, Chris Ouellette and Darren Blair.

Gary Depalmo and Chris Arnaud.

Event Ten (Hoser Triathalon, the Ironman Event) was won by Carl Ljungberg of the Earmuff Team. Carl won the gold medal, got his name and time (38 seconds) inscribed on the Ironman cup donated by Marge Easley, NRS, and was awarded a keeper hand-carved "Moose" trophy, courtesy of Butch Avery. This year's competition was dominated from the start by the experienced Beer Team. It is the first time that the Beer Team won the overall competition. They were led by veteran Team Captain Joe Reynolds and the Allround Athlete of '93, Brian Lavigne (winner of 3 gold and 2 silver medals) along with team members Rick Johma, Lynn Levesque, Joelle Jameson, Chris Ouellette, Darren Blair, Marie Lapierre. Dave Scragg, Woody Woodruff and Gary Keyes. The Beer Team racked up a record 69 points despite being disqualified in the Ironman and receiving zero points for that event. The eleven champions each received a hat courtesy of HiTech Screen Printing. Congratulations on a very remarkable Team effort; well

It was then brought to everyone's attention that just the day before, our friend and fellow Hoser, Craig Coons, had died in a fire trying to save a young boy. The 1993 Hoser Olympics were dedicated to Craig and everyone toasted his memory. Our hearts go out to all the friends and family Craig left behind. At this point, it was about six thirty and the party was brought to a close. People either walked, utilized designated drivers, or took taxicabs home to ensure everyone's safety.

12. Rod Cando (official photographer)

13. Judges and organizers (many extra efforts)

14. Jill Shackleton, Pat MacNeil and Doris Cameron (back bacon chefs)

Most of all I would like to thank the people who participated in the Hoser Olympic Games and for their donations to the Hoser cause. Take care and see you all next year at the 13th Annual Hoser Party, Eh!

Dogs in Canada

An interesting book this week. Why Does My Dog? by John Fisher, Howell Book House, New York, and Maxwell Macmillan Canada, Toronto, Ontario. $25.95.

This past year seems to have been one which has seen an extra large selection of doggy mind books (for lack of a better name for them). This is a good one for those of you who are wondering why your dog growls when he has a bone? jumps up at visitors? digs holes in the garden? chases cats? steals socks? etc. etc. Through the pages of his book, the author attempts to explain this to you, and much much more. Fisher is a highly experienced dog handler and trainer who now works as a full time dog behaviour therapist. Kind of a head-shrinker for dogs, I guess.

This is an attractively bound 231 page hardcover edition which hasn't been out too long, but if it is not on the shelf, you can order it by phoning Maxwell Macmillan at 1-800-465-5273.

One of the problems existing for a long time with the Canadian Kennel Club has been its virtual refusal to recognize new breeds of dogs despite the fact that these breeds, and there are many of them, have been around in other countries and in Canada, too, for many years. It was only when a rival organization reared its head and threatened to register these breeds, which had so long been denied registration by the C.K.C., that the Kennel Club powers that be realized that the public was no longer going to put up with this

In a recent issue of "Dogs in Canada" twelve newly recognized breeds are listed. New to Group 1, Sporting (hunting) dogs, is the Braque Français (French Pointer). In Group 3, Working dogs, we find the Canaan Dog, Greenland Dog, Leonberger, and the Portuguese Water Dog. Cold Lake's Terry Bagley, with her kennel name "Terramara," has worked for many years toward obtaining recognition of the Canaan Dog. In Group 5, Toys, we see the recognition of a very cute little dog known as the Chinese Crested. In Group 6, Non Sporting dogs, which is a sort of a grouping of dogs that don't fit anywhere else, we see three new breeds, the Chinese Shar-Pei, Japanese Spitz, and the Shiba Inu. Group 7, Herding dogs, also has three new breeds, the Australian Shepherd, Berger des Pyrences, and the Berger

Let's hope the trend toward recognizing the several hundred breeds of dogs not presently recognized in Canada continues. There is a need for caution to ensure that any new breeds are legitimate and properly stabilized, but there are many which have been around for centuries which are still not recognized by the C.K.C.

What do they mean when they speak of stabilizing a breed? Well, to put it simply, mother nature doesn't like her species messed with. If, for instance, you breed poodles to cocker spaniels, a popular mix these days, you get a loveable little dog which many call a cockapoo. But if you breed these cockapoos together, you will wind up with some more-orless cockers, and some more-orless poodles, as mother nature tries to put things back where they were. A new breed only comes about through many generations of selective breeding.

Cycle of Violence

Battering is a pattern of behaviour, not one or two isolated incidents. The cycle of battering behaviour is that over time the violence will tend to increase in intensity and severity, possibly ending in death. Outside intervention is usually necessary to break the cycle.

People say women must like being abused or else they would leave. WRONG! There are many reasons why women stay: from fear, from hope, from strong social pressures to preserve the family, from perceived or real lack of alternatives.

Alcohol is a factor in roughly only half of all abuse cases. Alcohol can aggravate abuse but it is not the cause of it. Wife abuse is caused by a more deeply rooted intention to hurt and control.

Children are victims, too. Children who witness or experience violence in the home suffer long term emotional conse-

Meat Sauce: 2 T. olive oil 1 onion, chopped 2 cloves garlic 1 carrot, chopped

1 stalk celery, chopped 1 lb. ground beef 1/2 cup dry white wine or chicken stock

1 - 28 oz. can plum tomatoes, purced

1 tsp. salt 1 tsp. pepper 1/2 cup whipping cream

Sautée onion, garlic, carrot and celery in oil. Add beef and brown. Pour in wine and cook for 5 minutes. Add tomatoes, salt, pepper and bring to a boil. Add whipping cream, reduce heat, and simmer for 20 minutes or until sauce thickens.

Besciamella Sauce:

1/4 cup butter 1/4 cup flour

3 cups milk dash of salt

dash of pepper dash of nutmeg

Melt butter, add flour and cook until thickened. Whisk in milk and bring to a boil, then reduce heat to medium-low and cook, stirring constantly for 10 minutes.

In large pot cook noodles al dente. Layer noodles in 9"x13" pan. Put meat sauce on noodles, then add noodles, besciamella sauce, and finally the parmesan. Repeat layers, ending with a layer of noodles covered with besciamella sauce. Sprinkle parmesan (or mozzarella) cheese over all. Note: homemade fettuccine noodles can be used if noodles are cut into 11/2-2 inch strips instead of 1/4-inch strips. Bake at 375° F for 40 minutes.

Taking Care of a Child With Asthma

Asthma can be a tough challenge for children to face. But with the help of parents and other caregivers, most children can cope with this disease and still enjoy a fairly normal life.

Asthma is caused by inflammation (or swelling) of the airways within the lungs. The most common symptoms are wheezing, coughing, shortness of breath and a feeling of tightness in the chest.

Children are affected differently by the disease. Five per cent are seriously troubled. Symptoms occur almost every day and affect the child's ability to enjoy normal activities, including running and playing. Another thirty per cent experience symptoms every four to six weeks and may require admission to hospital several times a year.

Sixty per cent of children with asthma suffer only mild and infrequent symptoms two or three times a year. These can show up during the winter, along with a cold, and in spring, coupled with pollen allergies. Five per cent suffer a chronic cough that is typically dry, worse at night, and comes and goes with exercise and having a "cold" or other infections like the 'flu.

The goal of asthma treatment is to stop inflammation of the lungs and, by doing so, to get rid of the symptoms. The illness is treated in two ways - with anti-inflammatory medications and bronchodilators. Bronchodilators, drugs which are usually administered with inhalers, are used for temporary relief to open airways so children can breathe easier. They relieve symptoms but do not treat the underlying inflammation, as do anti-inflammatory Children usually have to try a few drugs until their doctor finds the right treatment for them. However, once a child is on a treatment plan, it should be followed carefully. When a child is feeling better, he or she should still take the drugs unless recommended otherwise by a doctor. Symptoms may develop again if the child does not continue taking an anti-inflammatory drug to control the underlying problem of inflammation.

Similarly, drugs should not be used more often than recommended. If your child needs to use an inhaler frequently, consult your doctor. The child's treatment plan probably needs to be changed.

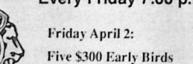

If your child must use an inhaler you should become very familiar with how it works. They are used very commonly because asthma drugs are generally most effective when breathed directly into the lungs and airways. Several different types of inhalers are available. Choose one based on your child's age and drug require-

Take extra care of a child with a cold or the flu. Both can cause swelling of the airways and may require a change in the treatment plan. Allergies and second-hand cigarette smoke are also known to cause inflammation in the airways of children with asthma. Other factors, such as exercise and cold air, can also act as "triggers" or irritants when airways are already inflamed.

Don't allow smoking in your home and keep it clean. When your child is suffering from asthma symptoms, dust and vacuum frequently. Don't allow pets indoors. Make sure your child has a clean, dust-free mattress, sheets and blankets.

For more information about asthma, call a community health nurse through your local health unit, daycare or school. You can also get excellent assistance from the nurse educator at the B.C. Lung Association by calling 731-4961 if you are in Vancouver or 1-800-665-5864 if you are elsewhere in B.C.

The Pill

Conception control using oral tablets has been around for over 30 years, plenty of time to assess their strengths and weaknesses. At times "the pill" has had a rough passage, having to weather a seemingly endless number of concerns. A recent survey showed that over 75 per cent of women still believe the pill is dangerous.

No so, says an article in the January 1993 issue of Postgraduate Medicine. While many women think the pill may be unsafe, few know about the many beneficial effects of oral contraceptives. It is now apparent that these outweigh the risks by a remarkable margin.

Birth-control pills offer virtually complete protection against pregnancy if doses are not missed. Complications are seldom seen; the chance of a woman dying during childbirth (a rare occurrence) are five times greater than her dying due to problems caused by the pill.

The incidence of ovarian cancer, which killed 12,000 U.S. women in 1991, is 40 per cent less in those who are, or have been, on the pill. Even after short-term use (three to six months) the protection lasts for many years. Likewise, cancer of the lining of the uterus was reduced by the same percentage, with protection lasting for at least 15 years if the pill had been used for a year or Ectopic pregnancies (in the fallopian tube) are increasing, probably due to the rise in sexually transmitted disease. They are very rare in pill takers; with no ovulation there is no pregnancy, tubal or in the uterus. Also, hospitalization for tubal infection is needed only half as often providing the woman had not had an episode of this disease prior to starting the pill.

There is more. There are two main types of non-cancerous breast lumps. The frequency of both are reduced by 30 to 60 per cent under the influence of oral contraceptives. This effect is noticed in all age groups and may last a year or more after the pills are stopped.

Painful periods, heavy flow (with the possibility of anemia), and irregular cycles are annoying, but less worrisome problems that respond very well to birth control

Finally, pill use does not have to stop at age 35 or 40 anymore the concern about heart or blood vessel risk is no longer there, except in smokers.

I took out half a liver a while back. Actually, I didn't (GP's don't do this kind of surgery), but I helped two certified surgeons and an intern do the job. The operation rates as a major one.

The patient had had a cancer removed from his bowel a couple of years earlier. There was initially no sign of spread and he did very well. The cancer clinic kept an eye on him, monitoring blood tests and CT scans, looking for, but hoping not to find, evidence of recurrence or spread.

The blood test was the clue that something was amiss; the scan of the liver showed what it was. There was a growth, a long way from the primary one. But there was only one, relatively isolated, technically possible to remove, or resect, as the surgeons

Comox Totems Win 1993 PAC Region Broomball

Totems halt Chilliwack's drive for six

During the week 21 - 26 Feb 93, CFB Comox hosted the 1993 Pacific Region Broomball Championship which involved teams from CFB Comox, CFB Chilliwack, CFB Esquimalt and Fleet. The tournament was a double round-robin, with first and second place teams playing for the championship. Broomball fans were treated to excellent broomball during the tournament and after the round-robin, Comox Totems were the favoured team. The final standings in the round-robin are as follows:

CFB Comox, 6 wins CFB Chilliwack, 4 wins CFB Esquimalt and Fleet, 1 win each

The Totems were led by Barry Hewer's hot hand, 14 goals, plus a fine mixture of veteran broomball players along with young talent to offset both offence and defence. Goaltending was also a key to the Totems' success as they only gave up 3 goals during the competition while registering 5 shutouts. The Totems went undefeated in the round-robin, beating CFB Chilliwack 3-1 and 4-0, CFB Esquimatt 3-2 and 5-2, and Fleet by scores of 5-0 and 4-0. CFB Chilliwack ended up in second place and would have had to beat the undefeated Totems claim the championship. How- their support.

Chilliwack 1-0 in a hard fought contest. The championship game was classic broomball, with end to end action and fantastic goaltending by both goalies. Chilliwack came out pressing hard, hoping to score the first goal and put pressure on the Totems. The first period was scoreless and the Totems settled down to play heads up broomball in the second period. Chilliwack were completely bottled up in their own end 90 per cent of the second period and luck, plus good goaltending, kept them in the game. Finally, Comox broke through with Ian Adams scoring the winning goal, assisted by Bob McMahon, late in the second period to claim the championship. CFB Comox will be picking up Elmer Gallant and Jim Peasley to strengthen the team in the hopes of winning the first ever National Championship for the Pacific Region. The Nationals will be hosted by CFB Calgary 16 - 26 Apr 93. Prior to press the Totems will be participating in the B.C. Provincials 19 - 21 Mar 93 at Kamloops, B.C.

Me & My Gavel

Story of a Novice PMC

Picture it: BTSO's Mess Din-The Military College motto is 'Truth, Duty, Valour." Applying ner 1993; upon returning from the break I had so graciously granted, this motto to the situation, it is I discovered that my gavel had obvious that the theft of a gavel been abducted. The next time I does not constitute "Truth." was to lay eyes upon the piece of Therefore, these individuals had gone against the motto. Howwood that had been entrusted into my care was after CWO Sarty had ever, perhaps they thought the magnanimously displayed it to all second part of the motto could the SNCMs on the base. I gather outrank the first portion. Perhaps that the assembled masses agreed they thought it was their "Duty" that I should write an essay to victimize a novice PMC, somedescribing how I was negligent in one who was not aware of the my duties as PMC. However, I tradition of "stealing" the PMC's choose to write about the criminal gavel. This brings us to the last portion of the motto, "Valour." activities of a select few members Valour is defind as personal courage, and I believe that is what As a diligent PMC, I inveswill be required next year, as I tigated the incident and have now have a list of names that I identified the chief instigators. I will recommend as candidates for was after the ring leaders, not the

No Snow Festival a Blast

442 Takes Top Honours (see page 10)

The 1993 "No Snow" Festival can only be described as a complete success. Events were well attended and a good time was had by all those involved.

The festival chairman, on behalf of the committee, would like to extend his thanks to all volunteers, judges, sponsors and participants for their support throughout the festival.

Congratulations to 442 Aircrew for their outstanding first place finish! Congrats also to B-Compt for capturing the Team Spirit award for the second year

One of the festival's highlights had to be the Charity Lock Up. A lot of fun generated a lot of money. To be exact, $1,267,69 was raised for the Family Emergency Fund. Good work!

MCpl Don Jackson of 442 Sqn was the grand prize winner of the trip for two to Edmonton or Calgary courtesy of AirBC. Special thanks to AirBC for this most generous prize donation. In addition, many thanks to the following local sponsors for their generous donations: Pizza Hut, Nevada Bob's Discount Golf, Mt. Washington Ski Resort, Bonanza Restaurant, Comox Golf Club, Glacier Greens Golf Club, Crown

Isle Golf Club, Subway, Pacific

Queen, Base Beauty Salon, Base Barber Shop, Happy's Sports, Kentucky Fried Chicken and Leeward Pub.

The final standings are as follows:

- 1 442 Aircrew
- 2 442 Groundcrew
- 3 BCompt
- 4-(tie) BFoods & 414 Aircrew
- 6 BHosp
- 7 (tie) BSupO & BCEO
- 9 407 Groundcrew
- 10 BAMSO
- 11 407 Aircrew
- 12 BTelO 13 - BOpsO
- 14 414 Groundcrew
